The Monetary Authority of Singapore (MAS) has announced that Singapore banks will stop issuing corporate cheques, so Singlife will progressively stop SGD cheque payments by 6 April 2026. We will instead credit all SGD payments to bank accounts linked to PayNow-NRIC/FIN. Please ensure that you have registered for PayNow-NRIC/FIN with your bank so that payments can reach you.

For customers who cannot use PayNow NRIC/FIN, please provide a copy of your bank passbook, or statement with your full name and bank account number clearly indicated on the same page and send it to claims_admin@singlife.com to receive payment via Direct Credit. All other information may be blanked out.

Important:

If we are unable to process your payment via PayNow-NRIC/FIN and do not receive valid instructions for Direct Credit, we will not be able to pay you.

Here's a useful tip to help you make the most of your Singlife Shield plan:

If you or the Life Assured are covered under a health insurance plan provided by your employer, you should submit your claim to your company-paid employee insurance plan first.

Why claim from an employee insurance plan first?

1. Maintain the claim limit on your personal health insurance.
2. In addition, we'll top up your Singlife Shield claim limit for the rest of your policy year by the claim amount we recover back from your company-paid insurance plan.
3. You'll continue to be reimbursed for any out-of-pocket expenses, e.g. deductible and co-insurance, that aren't covered by your shield plan.
4. We'll send you a S$50 shopping voucher if we successfully recover at least S$300 from your company-paid insurance plan.

How to claim from your employee insurance plan?

Simply submit a claim to your other health insurer with a copy of this letter and your medical bills. If you're unsure, you may wish to speak to your Human Resource department on how to submit medical claims for employees/dependants.
